CAUSE AND EFFECT

A withered flower didn't start out that way, Most likely, it died because it wasn't watered.

The same is true for many causes and effects in a wide variety of things that occur in our daily lives. But what about us?

As Christians, we're supposed to strive to rise above any typical effects that cause problems for others. But the reality of it is, we don't. Things that effect others, cause us the same if not more difficulty.

Things such as being incarcerated, or having a family member who's locked up. Events such as dealing with rebellious children.

Introduction

People in the world look at Christians as if we're supposed to have these perfect, spotless, unblemished lives. That we're supposed to have lives that others can look at through rose-colored glasses and always see it above everyone else's. Wrong. That is not even close to the reality of any Christian's life that I know.

Christians face the same issues everyone else does. The causes are the same, but what is glaringly different about us, is how we deal with the effects.

Profound isn't it. Exactly. At the same time an average, non-Christian parent is forced to face the reality of a pregnant teenage daughter, and may respond by forcing abortion, or possibly alienating their child altogether, most Christians I know, will pray, ask God for direction, then embrace the situation with love.
