Introduction

Based on many Scriptures, including what a lot of people call ‘The Love Chapter’ 1st Corinthians 13, this book focuses on hope and healing through the simple act of love.

Yes, that means to love people that we don’t even like. How can we have love and not like someone? Easy, the same way God does.

God loves us but He does not like some of our ways.

We can love people but not like some of their ways.

For example, there is TREMENDOUS GROWTH in loving someone who harms you. That means, treating anyone that mistreats us, as if it never happened.

Why? Because that’s exactly how God treats us.

Way back in Genesis God said, “I hate that I made man.” And that statement has never been withdrawn or restated. So, even though God hates that He created us, lets us live, and gives us every opportunity to show Him that we deserve it. He loves us because He knows that we need it.

The same is true for those who you need to spread love to, simple because they need it. If you can imagine where we’d be without God’s love, think the same thought about the people God wants you to show love to. Where would they be without your love?

Chapter One
Love Your Enemies

Imagine one day you walked outside and saw the hand of God sprinkling seeds from the sky onto the earth. You walk up to one of the seeds and notice that each one of those seeds has a name on it.

How would you feel if the seeds around you were of people you know, family, friends, neighbors, loved ones.

Then you notice something else, you can't find your own seed. The one with your name on it.

You look up at the hand still sprinkling other seeds, and you wonder where yours is.

Before you can even ask the question, a small still voice inside you says 'cup your hands'. Without thinking, you form your hands in the shape of a cup, and before you can look up, a special seed, bigger than the others, brighter than the rest, gently lands in your cupped hands.

The seed in your hand has your name on it. You smile, feel warmth inside, look up just as the hand in the sky is disappearing. You whisper, "thank you".

As you look back down, the seed starts to glow. Your name begins to reshape into several other letters. You look back up toward the sky as if to search for answers, but the hand is gone and there's nothing there but blue sky and clouds as usual. And when you look down again, the words on the seed in your hand say very simply...Spread Love.
